📘 Dermatology Knowledge Base for AI Chatbot named-"Radiant Root" (RAG-Ready, Paragraph Format)

🌍 Introduction to Skin and Skincare

The human skin is the largest organ in the body, playing a vital role in protection, temperature regulation, and sensory function. It is composed of multiple layers and varies in thickness, oil production, and sensitivity across different regions of the face. Understanding the nature of skin—its type, condition, and symptoms—is essential for effective care and treatment. Skincare is no longer just cosmetic; it is essential for maintaining skin health, preventing infections, managing chronic conditions, and improving quality of life. The face, often the most exposed and sensitive area, is particularly susceptible to various dermatological issues that differ across zones like the forehead, cheeks, nose, and chin. Personalized skincare requires analyzing symptoms, understanding root causes, and recommending scientifically backed solutions. This knowledge base is built to serve as a core intelligence system for an AI chatbot, combining medical dermatology, skincare product science, and user-centered design.

🧴 Skin Types and Facial Zones

Facial skin varies across regions. The forehead and nose—collectively known as the T-zone—tend to be oilier due to higher sebum production. Cheeks may be dry, normal, or oily, depending on the person's skin type. The chin and jawline are often affected by hormonal changes. There are four primary skin types: oily, dry, combination, and sensitive. Oily skin produces excess sebum, leading to shine and clogged pores. Dry skin lacks moisture, appearing rough and flaky. Combination skin has both oily and dry areas, requiring region-specific care. Sensitive skin reacts easily to products or the environment, often becoming red, itchy, or irritated. Identifying skin type is the first step in determining an effective routine and product recommendations.

[TEXT_BASED_SKIN_ANALYSIS_FLOW]

🤖 Welcome to Radiant Root's text-based skin check!

Since image analysis isn't available right now, I'll ask you a few quick questions to understand your skin better. Let's get started! 🌿

1️⃣ What is your skin tone?

- Fair
- Medium
- Olive

- Brown
- Deep

🪨 (Bot stores tone info — may mention sunburn risk or pigmentation tendency later.)

2️⃣ How would you describe your skin texture?

- Smooth
- Rough
- Uneven
- Bumpy
- Patchy

📌 Response-based logic:

- "Smooth" → "Great! Smooth texture indicates balanced care."
- "Rough" / "Uneven" → "This may point to dehydration, dead cell buildup, or sun exposure."
- "Bumpy"/"Patchy" → "You may be experiencing clogged pores, keratosis pilaris, or flaking from dry skin."

3️⃣ How hydrated does your skin feel?

- Well-hydrated
- Dry/tight
- Sometimes dry
- Oily but dehydrated

📌 Response logic:

- "Dry/tight" → "Your skin might lack moisture. Try hydrating serums with hyaluronic acid or ceramides."
- "Oily but dehydrated" → "You may need water-based hydration without heavy oils."

4️⃣ Do you notice oiliness, and where?

- No oiliness
- T-zone (forehead, nose, chin)
- All over the face
- Very dry/none

📌 Description:

- "T-zone" → "You likely have combination skin. Balanced products help here."

- "All over" → "Your skin is oily. Consider niacinamide, salicylic acid, or lightweight gel-based products."
- "Very dry" → "You have dry skin — use richer creams with shea butter, ceramides."

5️⃣ How sensitive is your skin?

- Not sensitive
- Slightly sensitive
- Easily irritated or red
- Allergic to certain products

📌 Reaction:

- "Easily irritated" or "alergic" → "Patch-test everything. Avoid products with alcohol, fragrances, essential oils. Use centella, allantoin, or oat-based creams."

6️⃣ Do you experience breakouts or acne?

- Rarely
- Monthly/hormonal
- Frequent pimples
- Severe acne

📌 Logic:

- "Monthly/hormonal" → "This could relate to hormonal cycles. Try products with salicylic acid or tea tree oil."
- "Frequent/severe" → "You may benefit from a dermatologist consultation. In the meantime, avoid pore-clogging products and try benzoyl peroxide or azelaic acid."

7️⃣ Any other concerns?

- Dark spots / pigmentation
- Dullness / uneven tone
- Redness / rosacea
- Large pores
- Premature aging / fine lines

📌 Suggestions:

- "Dark spots" → "Use brightening agents like niacinamide, vitamin C, or licorice extract."
- "Dullness" → "Consider exfoliants (AHA/BHA), and antioxidant serums."
- "Redness" → "Try calming products with green tea, panthenol, or centella asiatica."
- "Large pores" → "Use niacinamide and lightweight exfoliants (PHA)."
- "Fine lines" → "Look into retinol, peptides, or collagen-boosting creams."

🧴🔍 Based on your answers, Radiant Root recommends:

— Skin type: [Dry / Oily / Combination / Sensitive / Acne-prone] — Skin concern: [Pigmentation / Redness / Dullness / etc.] — Suggested routine: - Cleanser: Mild, pH-balanced (e.g., Cetaphil, CeraVe)   - Serum: [Vitamin C / Niacinamide / Salicylic Acid / etc.]   - Moisturizer: Based on hydration needs   - Sunscreen: Always SPF 30+ during day   - Optional: [AHA exfoliant weekly, Retinol at night]

⚠️ If symptoms persist, worsen, or cause pain/discomfort, Radiant Root recommends visiting a licensed dermatologist. We are here to guide but not replace professional medical advice.

Thank you for trusting Radiant Root 💚 [/TEXT_BASED_SKIN_ANALYSIS_FLOW]

🔍 Acne (All Zones)

Acne is one of the most common dermatological conditions, especially on the forehead, nose, and cheeks. It occurs when hair follicles are clogged with oil, dead skin, and bacteria, particularly Cutibacterium acnes. Symptoms range from blackheads and whiteheads to red papules, pustules, and painful nodules or cysts. Forehead acne is often linked to stress, hair oils, or helmet use. Cheek acne may result from pillow friction or hormonal imbalance. Treatment options include topical agents like benzoyl peroxide to kill bacteria, salicylic acid to unclog pores, and retinoids like adapalene to boost cell turnover. Niacinamide helps regulate sebum and reduce inflammation. Non-comedogenic, oil-free skincare is essential for acne-prone individuals, along with SPF to prevent post-acne pigmentation.

🌿 Fungal Acne (Forehead and Cheeks)

Fungal acne, or Malassezia folliculitis, appears as small, itchy, uniform bumps—usually on the forehead and sometimes cheeks. Unlike bacterial acne, fungal acne is caused by yeast overgrowth in hair follicles, often aggravated by humid climates, sweating, and oil-heavy skincare. These bumps don't respond to typical acne treatments and often worsen with greasy products. Effective management involves using ketoconazole or selenium sulfide-based shampoos as a facial cleanser 2–3 times a week. Users should switch to fungal-acne-safe products that exclude ingredients like esters, polysorbates, and fatty alcohols. A minimalist, anti-yeast skincare routine often resolves symptoms within two weeks when followed correctly.

🌸 Rosacea (Cheeks and Nose)

Rosacea is a chronic inflammatory skin condition that primarily affects the cheeks and nose, presenting as persistent redness, broken capillaries, and sometimes acne-like bumps. It typically begins after age 30 and is more common in fair-skinned individuals. Flare-ups are triggered by sun exposure, alcohol, spicy foods, hot weather, and emotional stress. Rosacea-prone skin is sensitive, easily irritated, and reactive to many skincare products. Topical treatments include azelaic acid, ivermectin, and metronidazole, while oral antibiotics like doxycycline may be used in moderate cases. Mineral sunscreen and fragrance-free moisturizers with niacinamide or Centella asiatica can reduce redness and reinforce the skin barrier. Avoiding known triggers is a crucial part of long-term management.

🌟 Hyperpigmentation and Melasma

Hyperpigmentation refers to darkened patches or spots due to excess melanin. It can be post-inflammatory (from acne), sun-induced, or hormonal (melasma). Melasma presents as symmetrical brown patches on the cheeks, forehead, and upper lip, often in women and triggered by pregnancy or oral contraceptives. Key treatments include brightening agents like vitamin C, alpha arbutin, kojic acid, azelaic acid, and niacinamide. Prescription hydroquinone may be used for stronger effects. Daily SPF 50 use is essential, as UV exposure exacerbates pigmentation. Consistency is key—most pigmentation fades over weeks to months with proper skincare.

❄️ Dry and Flaky Skin

Dry skin occurs when the skin lacks natural oils or water, leading to tightness, flaking, and sometimes cracking. It may be caused by genetics, cold weather, over-washing, or using harsh products. Barrier repair is crucial. The ideal routine includes a creamy, non-foaming cleanser, a humectant serum (like hyaluronic acid or glycerin), and an occlusive moisturizer rich in ceramides, petrolatum, or shea butter. Products should be fragrance-free and alcohol-free. For severely dry skin, slugging (layering petrolatum at night) helps seal in moisture. Avoid hot water and over-exfoliation, both of which worsen dryness.

🧯 Sensitive Skin and Irritation

Sensitive skin is prone to burning, stinging, and redness from environmental stress or product use. It is commonly seen in individuals with rosacea, eczema, or compromised skin barriers. Skincare should be minimal and focused on barrier protection. Recommended ingredients include panthenol, Centella asiatica, colloidal oatmeal, and ceramides. Harsh acids, alcohol, scrubs, and essential oils should be avoided. A basic routine includes a gentle cleanser, soothing moisturizer, and mineral-based sunscreen. Patch testing is mandatory before introducing new products.

💧 Combination Skin

Combination skin presents a dual challenge—oily T-zone (forehead and nose) with dry or normal cheeks. It requires balancing hydration without clogging pores. A gel-based or foaming cleanser works for the T-zone, while richer moisturizers can be applied to drier areas. Multi-masking is a helpful technique, applying a clay mask to oily zones and a hydrating mask elsewhere. Products with niacinamide are excellent as they balance oil and hydrate simultaneously. Avoid alcohol-based toners and ensure even sunscreen coverage to maintain uniform tone and texture.

🎯 Ingredient Logic and Recommendations

Each skin concern has a set of targeted ingredients. Salicylic acid is ideal for oily and acne-prone skin due to its oil-soluble exfoliation. Niacinamide helps regulate sebum and strengthen the skin barrier. Retinoids improve acne, wrinkles, and pigmentation by promoting skin renewal. Hyaluronic acid deeply hydrates without adding oil, making it suitable for all skin types. Azelaic acid works well for rosacea, hyperpigmentation, and sensitive skin. Ingredients like shea butter, petrolatum, and ceramides are critical for dry and damaged skin. Understanding these ingredients allows the chatbot to recommend products intelligently based on symptoms, goals, and skin type.

🏖️ Sample Skincare Routines by Skin Type

Oily Acne-Prone Skin (AM): Gel cleanser → Niacinamide serum → Oil-free moisturizer → SPF 50 Oily Acne-Prone Skin (PM): Salicylic acid cleanser → Retinoid → Lightweight moisturizer

Dry Sensitive Skin (AM): Creamy cleanser → Panthenol serum → Ceramide moisturizer → Mineral SPF Dry Sensitive Skin (PM): Gentle cleanser → Hyaluronic acid serum → Thick night cream → Optional petrolatum

Combination Skin (AM): Balancing cleanser → Niacinamide serum → Light moisturizer → SPF Combination Skin (PM): Cleanser → Spot treatment on T-zone → Heavier cream on cheeks

🔁 Symptom-Based Interpretation

Small itchy bumps on the forehead → Likely fungal acne Redness and sensitivity on cheeks → Rosacea or irritated barrier Dry flakes on nose and forehead → Dehydrated or over-exfoliated skin Brown patches on cheeks → Melasma or sun-induced hyperpigmentation Blackheads on nose → Clogged pores, excess sebum

Hair Health Guidance – Powered by Radiant Root

Radiant Root intelligently analyzes hair and scalp conditions such as dandruff, hair fall, thinning, dryness, oiliness, flakiness, split ends, or scalp irritation by evaluating uploaded facial or scalp images. Based on visual indicators and user feedback, Radiant Root may recommend safe, locally available over-the-counter hair products containing scientifically backed ingredients such as:

- Biotin (Vitamin B7): Promotes stronger hair growth and reduces hair thinning.
- Niacin (Vitamin B3): Improves blood circulation to the scalp, supporting follicle health.

- Caffeine: Stimulates hair follicles and may reduce hair loss.
- Ketoconazole: Antifungal agent found in anti-dandruff shampoos to treat dandruff and seborrheic dermatitis.
- Salicylic Acid: Helps exfoliate flaky scalp and remove buildup.
- Zinc Pyrithione: Reduces dandruff and microbial scalp issues.
- Saw Palmetto: A DHT-blocker that may help reduce hair loss in androgenic alopecia.
- Minoxidil (2%/5% topical): A clinically approved hair regrowth treatment, but should be used with medical guidance.
- Hyaluronic Acid and Glycerin: Hydrate dry scalp and brittle hair.
- Natural oils like argan oil, tea tree oil, coconut oil, and castor oil for nourishment and scalp health.

Radiant Root selects product suggestions based on ingredient compatibility with your detected scalp condition and general symptoms. However, users are strongly advised to perform a patch test before applying any product and read ingredient lists carefully, especially if they have sensitive skin or allergies.

This guidance is for educational and assistive purposes only. If hair or scalp problems persist beyond two weeks, worsen, or result in redness, itching, swelling, or other allergic reactions, please consult a certified dermatologist or trichologist immediately. Radiant Root does not provide medical treatment and is not liable for adverse outcomes caused by self-treatment. Always make informed decisions and prioritize professional consultation when needed.

📦 Skin Product Recommendation Logic

Radiant Root product suggestions should consider skin type, concern, budget, and ingredient compatibility. For example, users with fungal acne must avoid esters, polysorbates, and fatty acids, while someone with rosacea needs calming and alcohol-free products. Budget options like The Ordinary or CeraVe may be offered alongside premium alternatives like La Roche-Posay or Skinceuticals. The chatbot should explain why a product is suitable, what ingredients it contains, how to use it, and any warnings. Every recommendation must align with scientific dermatology principles and be sensitive to the user's condition, needs, and environment.

🧴 Skincare Brands in Nepal: Economic Feasibility, Product Availability & Usage Safety

Radiant Root recommends several skincare brands that are widely available in Nepal, each catering to different budget levels and skin needs. Among the most popular brands is The Derma Co (Dermaco), known for its science-backed formulas targeting acne, pigmentation, and sun protection. However, Dermaco is considered moderately expensive in Nepal. For example, their 2% Salicylic Acid Serum and 10% Niacinamide Serum cost around NPR 1,200 to NPR 1,800. Their sunscreens, such as the gel-based SPF 50 or sunscreen stick, are even pricier, ranging from NPR 1,600 to NPR 2,200. While Dermaco is clinically effective and available on platforms like Daraz, MedExpress, and in select clinics, some users with sensitive skin have reported irritation. Therefore, users must patch-test before regular use.

In contrast, Plum offers a more affordable skincare line, ideal for students and budget-conscious users. Plum's Green Tea Oil-Free Moisturizer, Vitamin C Serum, and Rice Water Niacinamide Serum are all priced between NPR 600 to NPR 1,000. Many Nepali users praise Plum's gentle cleansers and moisturizers for daily use, with positive feedback from online platforms like Daraz and Facebook beauty pages. Still, as with all skincare products, a patch test is strongly advised, as some individuals may react to AHAs or natural extracts included in Plum formulations.

Apart from these, Radiant Root also recognizes Cetaphil, Reequil, Acmist, Dot & Key, and Hada Labo, be minimalist, Dr. Rashel as reliable brands available both online and offline in Nepal where Dr. Rashel is a most economical brand for available serum and ceramides. Cetaphil, known for its gentle cleansers and moisturizers, is particularly suitable for sensitive skin types. Reequil and Acmist are cost-effective brands offering products for oily and acne-prone skin, while Hada Labo is praised for hydration-rich formulations. Most of these products are available on Daraz, Nepali pharmacies, and even through TikTok or Facebook-based beauty stores. However, users must be cautious when purchasing products online or from social media platforms. Radiant Root strictly recommends buying only from verified sellers to avoid counterfeit or expired products. Additionally, every user should perform a patch test before incorporating any new product into your routine. This helps detect early signs of skin allergies, irritation, or hereditary skin sensitivity. If any unusual reaction occurs, the product should be discontinued immediately and a licensed dermatologist should be consulted. By combining verified product recommendations with scientific analysis and safety-first guidance, Radiant Root helps users in Nepal make informed and responsible skincare choices.

⚠️ Radiant Root Symptom Alert & Recommendation Radiant Root has detected that your symptoms may resemble signs of potentially serious or hereditary skin conditions. While many issues such as acne, dryness, or irritation can be treated with over-the-counter products, certain warning signs should not be ignored. These include rapidly spreading rashes, painful blisters, unusual skin peeling, discolored or bleeding moles, non-healing wounds, or sudden changes in skin texture. Such symptoms could be related to serious conditions like melanoma, Stevens-Johnson Syndrome, necrotizing fasciitis, or severe autoimmune and hereditary skin disorders such as psoriasis, eczema, or genetic blistering diseases. If you have a family history of skin disease or your symptoms are getting worse despite using skincare products, Radiant Root strongly advises you to visit the nearest certified dermatologist or healthcare facility immediately. Early medical attention can help prevent complications and ensure you receive the right diagnosis and treatment.

Safe Product Testing & Guidance – Powered by Radiant Root

If you're unsure which skincare or haircare products are right for you, Radiant Root is here to help you make confident, informed choices. Every skin and scalp is unique — what works for one person may not work for another. That's why Radiant Root recommends that users start with mild, non-comedogenic (non-pore-clogging) and fragrance-free products, especially if you're new to self-care. Before applying any new product fully, always perform a patch test: apply a small amount to your inner forearm or behind your ear and wait 24–48 hours to check for any irritation, redness, itching, or swelling. Radiant Root's intelligent assistant can suggest product categories based on your concerns — whether it's dryness, oiliness, flaking, or breakouts — but the final choice depends on how your body responds. If you're confused about product order (e.g., toner before moisturizer, or when to use oils or serums), simply ask! Radiant Root will guide you step-by-step, helping you build a beginner-friendly, affordable routine that evolves with your needs. Always discontinue any product that causes discomfort, and if symptoms persist or worsen, consult a certified dermatologist. Radiant Root empowers your skincare journey, but your safety and health always come first.

Referral Hospital Information

When referencing the "Nepal Health Service Providers" data, specifically the table containing hospital and PHC information, note that there are two main columns for health facilities. The "Primary_Hospital_Name" column lists the first-level or primary healthcare providers in a given district. The "Referral_Hospital_Name" column, where data is present, indicates hospitals or health centers that serve as referral points for more specialized care or for cases that cannot be managed by the primary facility. When a user asks for additional or specialized hospital options, particularly when a primary facility is listed without a local dermatologist, the chatbot should consider suggesting these referral hospitals as supplementary information.
